Raising Faith-Filled Kids - One Word at a Time

Hope

Here's a trick that can change your outlook on life: watch your language. Let me explain. I was listening to parents who were picking up their daughters from dance class. One mom rattled off the day's activities as though they were a list of punishments: "I have to get Elizabeth from here to Brownies, and then I have to pick up Jeremy at hockey and take him to the store for new shoes. Then I haveto . . ." Another described her day differently: "Today we get to spend time at the library, and then Maria is looking forward to trying out her new moves at Tae Kwon Do. Tonight we're excited to see that new Disney flick!" One mom's words reflected dread; the other revealed hope. So watch your language and ask, Do my words reflect dread or hope?

—Tom McGrath

Criando hijos creyentes • una palabra a la vez

Esperanza

Le tengo un truco que puede cambiar su manera de ver la vida: cuide su vocabulario. Déjeme que le explique. Estaba escuchando a unos padres de familia que habían ido a recoger a sus hijas de la clase de danza. Una de las mamás recitaba las actividades del día como si hubieran sido una lista de castigos: "Tengo que llevar a Isabel de aquí a la reunión de las Brownies, luego tengo que recoger a Pedro del hockey y llevarlo a la tienda para comprarle zapatos nuevos. Después tengo que. . ." Otra mamá describió su día de manera diferente: "Hoy podremos pasar tiempo juntas en la biblioteca, y luego María espera probar sus movimientos nuevos en la clase de Tae Kwon Do. ¡Estamos muy emocionadas de ver la nueva película de Disney esta noche!". Las palabras de una de las mamás reflejan miedo; las de la otra, esperanza. Así que cuide su vocabulario y pregúntese: ¿mis palabras reflejan miedo o esperanza?
