Pope: Half-hearted Catholics aren't really Catholics at all

By Cindy Wooden

Vatican City –Those insist others pray and believe exactly like they do, those who have alternatives to every church teaching and benefactors who use the church as a cover for business connections may call themselves Catholic, but they have one foot out the door, Pope Francis said.

"Many people say they belong to the church," but in reality have "only one foot inside," the pope said June 5 at morning Mass in the chapel of his residence.

"For these people, the church is not home," but is a place they use as a rental property, he said, according to Vatican Radio.

Pope Francis reflected on the day's gospel reading, John 17:20–26, and Jesus' prayer that there would be unity, not divisions and conflict, among his disciples. There are three groups of people who call themselves Catholic, but are not really, the pope said. Apologizing for making up words, he labeled the three groups: "uniformists," "alternativists" and "businessists." The first group, he said, believe that everyone in the church should be just like them. "They are rigid! They do not have that freedom the Holy Spirit gives," and they confuse what Jesus preached with their "own doctrine of uniformity."

"Jesus never wanted the church to be so rigid," Pope Francis said. Such people "call themselves Catholics, but the rigid attitude distances them from the church."

The second group, those with alternative teachings and doctrines, "has a partial belonging to the church. These, too, have 1 foot outside the church," he said. "They rent the church," not recognizing that its teaching is based on the preaching of Jesus and the apostolic tradition.

Members of the third group "call themselves Christians but don't enter into the heart of the church," they use the church "for personal profit," the pope said. "We have all seen them in parish or diocesan communities and religious congregations; they are some of the benefactors of the church."

"They strut around proud of being benefactors, but in the end, under the table, make their deals," he said.

Pope Francis said the church is made up of people with a variety of differences and gifts, and if one wants to belong to it, he or she must be motivated by love and answer with "your whole heart."

And being open to the Spirit, who fosters harmony in diversity, he said, brings "docility," which is "the virtue that serves us" from entering the church half-heartedly.

Year of Strong Catholic Parents

July 2013 - June 2014

Raising Faith-Filled Kids - One Word at a Time

Love

One of the things I have learned as a parent is this: when a family member is going through a rough time and I don't know what to do, I just need to love him or her through it. That's become a kind of man-tra for my wife and me because it works. When we come to the end of our rope and don't know what the "right" thing to do is, we'll say, "We can love her through it." In-viting love into the equation is to invite God into the mix. Bringing our uncertainty and worry into the light of Christ allows us to focus less on the problem and more on the person. God is love, and those who abide in love, abide in God. That is my wish for you and your family.

—Tom McGrath

Criando hijos creyentes • una palabra a la vez

Amor

Una de las cosas que he aprendido como pa-dres de familia es la siguiente: cuando un miembro de la fa-milia está pasando por un momento difícil y no sé qué hacer, solo tengo que amarlo mien-tras pasa el momento. Eso se ha convertido en una especie de mantra para mi esposa y para mí porque funciona. Cuando llegamos al final de lo que está en nuestras manos y no sabemos qué más pode-mos hacer, decimos: "Podemos amarlos mientras pasa". Invitar a que el amor sea parte de la ecuación es invitar a Dios. Llevar nuestra incertidumbre y pre-ocupación ante la luz de Cristo nos permite poner menos aten-ción en el problema y más en la persona. Dios es amor y aquellos que permanecen en el amor, permanecen en Dios. Ese es mi deseo para usted y para su familia.

—Tom McGrath
